On the Cliff: Part 1

We went to the south coast for 3 nights 4 days

We stayed for half of the holiday in Bournemouth

On the second day, we decided to go to the Jurassic Coast

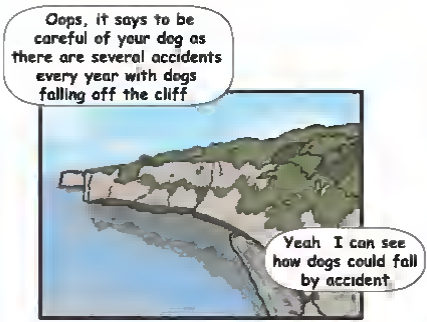
This is o World Heritage Site, and it's well known for beautiful scenery. You olso con find lots of dinosaur fossils.

A wide opened green field and hills...



Oops, it says to be careful of your dog as there are several accidents every year with dogs falling off the cliff
Yeah I can see how dogs could fall by accident

...the other side was just a cliff with an amazing blue sea beside it.

Among the cliffs,
there were a few sticking out bits.

So we looked down at the view from those points.

Mev didn't get scared at all.

Anyway, when we got to one end.

Mev wanted to go to the very narrow path.

I just could tell that that was such a narrow path so you hardly had any spare space once you put your feet on it.

Mev started to walk there without fear.

Then when he just got to the narrowest part,...

...he thought
he would be better to come back.

Once he felt the fear,
he realized how tall the cliff was and how narrow the path was.

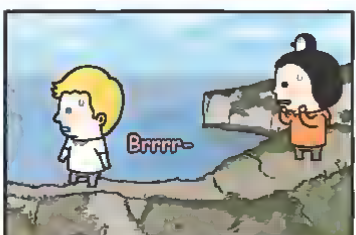
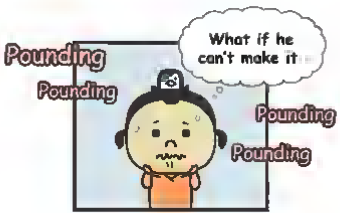
His legs started to shake.



He was absolutely in a double bind



Seriously,
it was the most fearful moment
in my life.
